i wont give up on my dreams i wont just jump on the train i'm gonna drive it home i will open up the doors take a chance and never walk away we're finally past the start of what we've known to call our home

if you could understand youre never alone at night
can we all just pretend we're one in the same old fight we all just wanna make a name its time to move if we only knew, how much we're really worth would it be the change, that will lift our heavy hearts

every night i lay here in this room, wondering where ive
every day i go misunderstood, waiting just to live tell me where i went wrong
