A couple of boy scouts selling popcorn
Traveling door to door in the rain
Afterwards we went to your mom's house and talked about meeting Mark Twain

Then we got older and went to prom and partied on our graduation day
We had our whole lives ahead of us
But it all changed along the way

CH:
Look up, do you see me now?
Do you hear me singing in stereo?
If I asked you would you even know
That I wrote this song about you?

And every few months I still get a call
When so-and-so's broken your heart again
We sit and pretend we're enjoying this
You still call me your best friend

CH:
Look up, do you see me now?
Do you hear me singing in stereo?
If I asked you would you even know
That I wrote this song about you?

BRIDGE:
There you are getting drunk, 29 years old talking about the good ol days and all my hits are
"overplayed"

CH:
Look up, do you see me now?
Do you hear me singing in stereo?
If I asked you would you even know
That I wrote this song about you?

Do you hear me coming through?
Is my music too loud for you?
