Try as I may to carve my path
I cannot keep myself from stumbling back to you

And you'll say "Don't you ever lose you heat"
"Don't you ever be caught shedding your skin too soon"

Find me with a milk-heavy heart
And I would clear the pollen from your eyes
I would, I would

For love has got you hanging on my hips
Like a worn-out dress with my skin showing through

Can't we forget about the truth?
It never called to me like it called to you

And if salvation never takes our hands
We'll dance around the wreckage
Nonetheless

Just as sure as every parting word
Comes stuttering off every parting tongue
I cannot keep myself from stumbling back to you
