Don't speak too soon
We put the man on the moon
We put the lines in the sky
As the clouds went by
People are square but the earth is still round
As she walks past, I am lost and then found

I'm in danger now
To reveal it all
Easy overseas, when you're on your knees
But when I'm back home, in my comfort zone
I still hold on tight to the things that are right

Eloquently, she walks past the sea
Beauty and brains pass like two moving trains
Through mountains and snow, up high and down low Through fields of bright green, only few have but seen

She's an acre on my mind, I must admit that she's kinda divine
She's an acre on my mind, the only acre that I still can't find

Don't speak too soon
We put the man on the moon
We put the lines in the sky
As the clouds went by
People are square but the earth is still round
As she walks past, I am lost and then found

I'm in danger now
To reveal it all
Easy overseas, when you're on your knees
But when I'm back home, in my comfort zone
I still hold on tight to the things that are right

She's an acre on my mind, I must admit that
she's kinda divine
She's an acre on my mind, the only acre that I still
can't find

She's an acre on my mind, I must admit that

sheâ€™s kinda divine

Sheâ€™s an acre on my mind, the only acre that I still canâ€™t find
