There's a light behind these trees
And water that runs
It calls us to be free

Something that fills these teenage lungs
Falls into nature
And dives to become

It drives our hearts
It's like a drum
We don't look back, we all just run

Walk through the woods and
Look for the sun
Jump for the current
And swim with the sun
Never again will we be this young

Come on, we'll soak our jeans
They'll roll their eyes
And say they've seen it all before
Our laugh and sighs and natural highs
Our hearts alive are decades old tonight

Walk through the woods and
Look for the sun
Jump for the current
And swim with the sun
Never again will we be this young

Walk through the woods and
Look for the sun
Jump for the current
And swim with the sun
Never again will we be this young

Never again will we be this young
Never again will we be this young
Never again will we be this young
Never again will we be this young

There's a light, it sets us free
