What can you see when you walk out the door you walk out the door and before you see my face what can you see when you step out the door you step out the door and before you see some other face that resembles me

I know why why why you always need something other why did you even even bother to tell me all that I you ask why why why I don't even even bother to feel sad to feel bad for that breath a sigh of relief for you it may seem that we all are alike that we all are the same so you always burn all the bridges behind you see in me something other that I something other that I spare the words, keep your blue eyes wide open, you'd wonder what you might find

I know why why why you always need something other
