She took my heart and ran without never turning back she just slipped through the cracks She says that I can't clean up my lousy act so she slipped through the cracks without never turning back, without never turning back

So i hopped a train without never turning back just rolling down the tracks Now im on my way escaping our passed just rolling down the tracks and im never turning back, no im never turning back

All those broken thoughts they cant mend my shattered heart
We take it from the start and it all falls apart All those broken thoughts they cant mend my shattered heart

In the morning she was gone without anything to say like a villain in a play All the loves we've known they all end up the same way that im a villain in a play without any thing to say without any thing to say

All those broken thoughts they cant mend my shattered heart We take it from the start and it all falls apart All those broken thoughts they cant mend my shattered heart
