You sent me a letter, it said please get here soon so I packed all my bags and fired up my balloon I followed your breadcrumbs to the tippity-top and I waited and I waited and I didn't stop

And I waited and I waited and I waited and I waited when all of a sudden my balloon popped so I banged on your door and I shouted your name and I hoped for the best when it started to rain

I want to feel everything
I do feel everything
I want to feel everything
mmm mmm da da

You promised me a parachute ready to go if I needed
to pull
You promised me a parachute but I'm still freefalling

My head's in the clouds and from here it's so swell We'll take late spring vacations to simple hotels Collecting pretty seashells by the oceantide Laughing with teacups we'll ring little bells

I want to feel everything
I do feel everything
I want to feel everything
mmm mmm da da

You promised me a parachute ready to go if I needed
to pull
You promised me a parachute but I'm still freefalling

Yet if you say those words (the ones I've been fretting to hear) Yes, if you finally say them my dear, I'd fear you insincere

You promised me a parachute ready to go if I needed
to pull
You promised me a parachute but I'm still freefalling
