

Michael McFarland

"Continental Divide"

Visit "Continental Divide" on MotoLyrics.com

We fell out of the sky, two little snowflakes on the wind we knew when summer arrived our mountaintop days would have to end winter brought us to life, spring began our ending with a thaw summer we opened our eyes, couldn't stop the seasons after all the sun came out, we melted down but oh, though we felt as thick as thieves there's a time you have to finally decide that we flow down to different seas from atop the continental divide

set down on a mountain so high, you can see forever from up here snow melts like tears in your eyes, we knew we wouldn't make it through the year though we fit as close as children's blocks and felt as thick as thieves

there's a time you have to finally decide we were born on the same mountaintop but flow to different seas from atop the continental divide

Visit Michael McFarland page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.