Midnight at Niagara Falls
A picture for your bedroom walls
But all the while your heart stayed closed
Silver waves on yellow beach
And happiness within our reach
But all the while your heart stayed closed

But I kept holding on
Another day, another try
But I kept holding on
It isn't life if you're living a lie

You're the key but you're locked inside
You're never going to let me in
My door was open but your heart stayed closed
You can see what we have has died
Or never was there to begin
(The end of what we might have been)
My door was open but your heart stayed closed

Panorama on the pier
September starts another year
But all the while your heart stayed closed
Fevered nights and frozen days
And plans to pass the time away
But you cast me off like some outworn clothes

There's nothing left to say to you
After all you put me through
There's only pictures left it's true
But that's all right, that's all right
And even if we could get better
Make a change and last forever
I wouldn't take you back, no never
And it's all right, that's all right
