Steal the breath from me, it's yours to take
I give it freely
Shake me from my sleep to see the things
I could have done
To change everything, to be in place

To drive you both home
Not to gravestones
Take you somewhere safe

Speak to me in memories, to comfort me
A welcomed haunting, this is my apology, this fallacy
A welcomed haunting, silence ringing through the city
Sorrow floods the streets

It occurs to me
I haven't seen where you've been sleeping
Crushed so deep beneath reality, just over six feet
What could I have done is all I'll think

To drive you both home
Not to gravestones
Take you somewhere safe

Sirens
(I am)
Blaring
(Failing)
Echo through the trees
(Rest in peace)

Silence
(Silent)
Waiting
(Funeral procession)
Two are missing heartbeats
(Through the streets)

Lift the coffin weight, I feel ashamed
There's something missing
The black hearse waits below
Down by the road To drive you both home

To your graves, your final resting place
