Wake up, the walls have softened up
(My foxhole's filling up with mud)
Please come, save me

We dug this hole, we made it safe
(Yet now, you're staring down at me)
I'll keep reaching, I won't give up
(Because to me it means that much)

Still fighting these battles in our words
Still fighting these battles in our whispers

We're fighting wars in our words
In our whispers, so soft they can't be heard
This battle has been lost
This war cannot be won

Discard every word I said
(And I'll still love you just the same)
Clear out my head

This world is breaking all around
(Still you refuse to make a sound)
I'm not breathing, please lift me now

Do something, call out 'Man down'
Pay for your treason, your betrayal
Live in exile for fighting wars like whispers

Now how do you plead?
