Poor Germany,
can you see your children,
how they queue before the abyss.

Ill Germany,
can you understand their fear, when they go to sleep.

La Le Lu,
only the man in the moon watches,
when the poor children sleep, then you'll sleep too.

La Le Lu,
and the little heart freezes over,
when the other children ask How much do you have?

Sandman, Sandman,
put out the lights,
the truth is cruel,
so give me a dream.

Sandman, Sandman,
come to my house,
sprinkle sand into my eyes
and wake me never again

can you see your children
how they slowly go before the dogs?

Rich Germany
when will the fun pass you when will you understand?

La Le Lu,
only the man in the moon watches,
when the poor children sleep,
then you'll sleep too.

La Le Lu,
and the little heart freezes over,
when the other children ask:
how much do you have?

Sandman, Sandman,
put out the lights,
the truth is cruel,
so give me a dream.

Sandman, Sandman,
come to my house,
sprinkle sand into my eyes,
And wake me never again.

Dry bread makes cheeks red
The boy lives in great misery He's already screamed his lungs sore Hunger burns in the child's mouth

But everyone sits in their own boat Now I'll show you what wealth is In the country that forgets its brood

Sandman, Sandman,
put out the lights,
the truth is cruel,
so give me a dream.

Sandman, Sandman,
come to my house,
sprinkle sand into my eyes,
And wake me never again.
