well it seems I've worn my welcome there's no words that can replace everything about your open arms when i fell in your embrace and i can't offer you forgiveness for all the things you said and done maybe next time I'll remember how it feels to fall apart but I still want to feel your skin even though your not next to me these memories of you are hard to break and your words burn like fire and cover me like rain and it's so much more
than i can take well I'm so tired ever since you went away I felt the pressure of the moment but your words just slipped away I couldn't bring myself to tell you just how hard I really fell this time, it's forever there's no moving on from here
there's no moving on from here there's no moving on...
from here
