

Oh Guardian "Cartographer"

I have seen many over the years, the smartest the purest and even the strongest fall from a throne that was once mighty, fall from grace without guidance, I will admit these eyes are open for my cartographer these eyes are open for what guides me, my breaths are filled with words unspoken and truth that most cannot see solitary in this room I am chained to, I learn the truth I've never been more lost, show me the way so help me see the right path to rely on where I will find myself

where I can breathe, and every breath, and every breath will guide me show me the way to become stronger a little more level headed to make life more like my dreams

In these dark times I need the light, If X marks the spot show me the way I will follow the stars straight and true I am the lost.

interpret these words however you may, but when the ground beneath your feet becomes unstable I pray you have something to reach for

I hope that you find your peace, I hope that you find guidance do not question what leads me, these eyes are open and I am free.
I am free.

I'll never again be lost, show me the way so help me see the right path to rely on where I will find
where I can breathe, and every breath, and every breath will guide me

to make my life more like my dreams.
