We stand in awe of You and what You have done,
the work You do is all around to prove You are God.
There is nothing more we need to see,
You spoke existence into being,
and speaking, all goes down in flames.
You look at us with love. We can't grasp what You offer, another chance for redemption with Your power.
You hold all things together,
and in an instant, this will all be over.
Give me a voice to speak for the weary and the weak.
To show what You have done,
with a heart of stone and death,
molded into beating flesh.
I swear I will stand by what You have done to give hope where there was none.
I swear I will stand by what You have done,
You are King, Alive, Death trembles at Your voice.
We stand in awe of You and what You have done,
the work You do is all around to prove You are Good.
There is nothing more we need to see,
You spoke existence into being,
and speaking, You have revived me.
I can never give You enough credit,
I have seen what You have done,
I can't go quiet. You are who You are,
and who You are is Love. All praise to Your name,
You are king, forever reign.
