Lil brick brain, are you ok?
Cos the world don't wanna spin today
There's a change in the order
Must be something in the water
Cos nothing really taste the same

It's not about the generation
It's not about our education
We don't need to think today
Cos you and me can slip away
You know, You're my sugarstone

I heard your soul
Kinda lost control
But you're here now and you never want to go
Cos baby in the dark
You vibe too hard
And it feels like you're steaming in the snow

It's not about the generation
It's not about our education
We don't need to think today
Cos you and me can slip away
You know, You're my sugarstone

You feel it in your brittle bones
You feel alive or feel alone
I really really need you to know
I know you've got a heavy little heart
And it seems as though your future is the past
And though your feet are made of lead
You've always had a feather head
You know

It's not about the generation
It's not about our education
We don't need to think today
Cos you and me can slip away
You know, You're my sugarstone
