"The Decay Of Antimatter"

You manifest in distant memories again. You cast the coldest shadow my skin has ever felt. I risk perpetual paralysis revisiting them. Underneath it all we confide resistance. It's natural to second guess every word. To question your honor. Underneath it all consequences fail us. When purity gets filtered out by justice the pleads of the damned are heard. Acknowledge the deceased make an attempt to reconnect with them. Molested by decay while they await a new awakening. Soon we'll rejoice at your expense, remember me. A swift calm caresses my sanity. Enlightened becoming instantly bound. Waste of half a lifetime reflecting on the unfold. Took my eye off the target and the rest was left unsaid. We all go back to dust eventually. Washed away by the tides of deceit.
