avoiding this is like avoiding the plague we can't understand the advances we made we try to resist but it's so hard to say no we're pretending to see what the future will hold we appear to be in control of our fate just like soldiers believe they're in control of the war its moving so fast we cannot see what we've done we're losing our eyes just to say that we've won My minds made up, my heart is broke
I can't understand how we can ever believe the things we've asked for but never received we never understood the times we asked the way we wasted all the past this neglected final into stage we must endure to ever hope to see the first my minds made up about the things we did we never saw we believed we could say what we missed
My minds made up, my heart is broke
the things we've asked for but never received by making noises cause we cannot control the things we hoped that we'd never fore-go
we appear to be in control of our fate
just like soldiers believe they're in control of the war if its moving so fast we cannot see what we've done we're losing our eyes just to say that we've won My minds made up, my heart is broke
the things we've asked for but never received
