But if I'm not around, then you'll have to make ends meet

And all we'll never have is every plan we haven't planned

So don't be sad or lose sleep for me

Over and over, it's over and I miss it so You'll have to make both of our ends meet when I'm not around

When all the cars break down
And every street lights out
So long as nobody cares
So much for a wayworn stare

Forget the stories that we've read, I know they sound right but they're wrong Because all those sorry saddened songs that were lost on our ears Never clear were there all along

Shoulder to shoulder, it's over and we've met our end I know it sounds right but it's wrong so forget what we've read

When all the cars break down
And every street lights out
So long as nobody cares
So much for a wayworn stare
