Sometimes when I'm a million miles away
Feeling old and tired
With not a lot to say
I dream that I can change the world
But it's the world that's changing me
I'm not looking for a flower to pick
I need a mountain to climb
I know there's somebody who understands
I know there's somebody with no demands
I didn't want to be the one for you anyway
Until the day when I am seventeen again
I will stretch my arms to reach
For every moment I pretend
That someone could change my world
But it's still the world that's changing me
