Lurid maelstrom, ignite knowledge beyond all time
I have come - to now collect all your souls, come to me
I've come to give sight, unspoken might Severed, split - shearing until it divides to revive
I have come to show you the light, untangled coil
Life's spiral - plunging deep into the past, abrogate
You seek endless life, countermand life
To science - only to suffer in vain, paralyze
Now entombed the rest of your life
On the cot, inject - new life into you
All that's sought, one chance
To take back the time that you lost
Wasting days, careless - then everything changed
No known ways to die, to cure
What's been laid out on the table
No more ways, so much pain
Endless days - slowly dying, always Sleepless plight, ends in sight, cannot fight
Stem cell harvest, last hope
In the labs - they're cloning new life
Barbed helix - that's rendered divine
Requisite - The cells will divide
Slowly bringing - new life
On the slab - infusing new blood
Life signs dead - replace the old parts
You now rise - rebuilt new again
Reborn in your last day
Cells stored for rebuilding
Flesh and bone, organs for harvesting
Brand new souls, still time will expire
Your new mold
Infinite, exquisite, sheering time
Cannot die - life owed to a science Thankful - to all the efforts that conquered your very death
Now life seems - infinite
You can - rebuild yourself anytime now you see fit
Life owed to - life's science
Now forced - to be prepared to re-conquer your very death
Though life seems - infinite

You must rebuild yourself for all time
