Here I stand,
No crown, no land
And yet prepared to tender
My unconditional surrender
To pledge my plight, to reunite
A mother and her son.

This woman you chained,
This woman I love
Know just how brave she can be
And don't shed a tear, not for me
Her own need is to embrace
A son who's never seen her face.
And so it is my turn has come,
As ever her defender
With joy as heart I surrender.
Chain me now and set her free
To heed her young sons' ball

Let me trade my life for hers
And I'll surrender all.
