They say the wind makes you turn when a moment suspends in time,
You see their pictures a memories affliction
The frames share the borders to another story...

These pages remain unwritten, ink less
But bound still tight by past powers
Like the fall of Rome denial saved me
The best it could for only so long

So ill keep pretending
And you'll keep explaining
Maybe it's time to finally let go
Of everything that reminds me of this...
Reminds me of...

Gravity, working in reverse
Seasons back when the leaves were changing
It's so beautiful, but something was missing
As a hole filled my chest and my lungs caved in
From the pure weight of my heart falling six feet back up

So ill keep pretending and you'll keep explaining My head is spinning round and round me
I'm losing grip on what's real
And what's a dream or false to me

So if heavens not real let me die in my sleep
So I can live in my dreams next to you

Because the sky has never held so much color
Since these years passed without you
The sky now holds so much more than Average night tales, shooting stars,
And all the dreams now lost forever

Forgive me cause I'm
Slowly drowning without you with me

Slowly drowning without you with me
