"Sweeter Than Wine"

She's pure as the morning, the sweet virgin sun
As it rises through shadows and opens my eyes She's sweet as an apple from an orchard that's never been tamed
And the snake never spoke to her

So I'll wait for you, Love
And lift you right up from your feet on the ground
Til your heads in the clouds
You left me out West, to chase the whole world down
I ain't running after you none
But I'd wait for you, Love.

Her love runs like a river that cuts through the earth
And she runs through my mind at the end of the day
Her heart's deep as an ocean, it rises and falls
And I fear that the sea it might swallow me whole

So I'll wait for you, Love
And lift you right up from your feet on the ground
Til your heads in the clouds
You left me out West, to chase the whole world down
I ain't running after you none
But I'd wait for you, Love.
