handing out handjobs and fingerfucks to the poor traces of incest that appease the masses hints of abortion linger in the smoke that emits from the rubble of glory a passionless murder is whispered just as silence has once chilled our streets children weep heavily awaiting the apocalypse i once shared a vision with a holy man we danced in house of God sharing silence we watched the last fire fizzle out to nothingness i await the last drop of hope but my cries cannot be heard over the famine and the filth and the wreckage as the world as we once knew it collides with the wars of God and demon hate and love death and life sounds of thousands marching to the graves stenches of vomit and emaciated lives combine causing my nostrils to flare and my heart to race is there no escape from this wretched place? is there no escape from this wretched place? is there no escape from this wretched place?
