A Summer Better Than Yours "Dig And Dig"

Today l' II learn to abandon self-hatred, a better way to feel less like l' m faking my way through the day â€~cause tomorrow's a chance worth taking. Cut off the lights, it's time for sleep in this city. This year's been hard. Take all you want â€~cause my ambition is all l' ve got. Sleeping in is always on my schedule. Wasted friends will keep my smiles up. Now and then, l' II leave this mess behind me. There' s no use in fixing what was built to be broken. So I dig and dig to the other side of the world tonight, if I find my heart I' II take it back. Well I' m taking them all back. I' ve been fishing for compliments, but you' re so condescending in the way that you resent me. l' m holding on, but losing hope. Listen up this will only take a second. I' ve been looking for a friend, I could have sworn I left one here. I hope I find him soon so I can get back home. Dig and dig to the other side of the world tonight, if I find my heart l' II take it back. So I dig and dig till I find the fight I had inside me, cause now we' re here. This is our time. l' m taking them back. I cut my heart out a long time ago. I buried it one summer night along the road. l' m taking them all back. l' m taking them all back. I buried my heart.
