VERSE ONE:

Mark Hoy -

It's about to arrive

'Fate will tell who will survive, the populace cries out

They're looking for a hero

Blind lead the weak they embrace the deceiver

False prophet converts them and overturns believers

Lost ones are those who forsake their souls for cheap tricks

The wicked one, master of illusion

The only real solution, renegades willing to fight

The harbingers of darkness meet believers of light

Some will give to dark side, greedy and soul sick

Men become beast and demeanor ferocious

Deceiver breeder forked tongue stand behind pulpit

Brought to knees beheaded progeny will find coldest

Hopeless world on the edge of the plummet

While angels cry for their children watching above it

The possible conclusion to the chapter of man

The fate of our existence in the palm of our hands...

CHORUS:

The rise, the fall, the days, the nights

To fail or fight defeat.

Beneath the darkness snakes devise

A veil but light can peak.

They breach despite the walls to climb,

They find a path to reach.

The tide will turn, the world will burn without the mind to seek.

VERSE TWO:

Chimaroke Abuachi -

They wage war though the ends coming

Cause opportunity in times famine and disease clings to the hopes of those who spite running

Most of them fight, those who know god believe

Cling to guns, feel safer holding one

But if the prophecies are true all will be stunned

In the times metals in the clutch of those devils

Leave villages on edge giving birth to the rebels

Unsettled, no Sayers raid
Representing change, we will seize the day
Cause what they bully make activists sway
Shift beneath the rocks, hide what they should say
It's a fight to speak over a megaphone
In a crowd of drones giving praises cause they fear control
I remain the authority's bane
They fear cause I move while the others stay the same
