You said I had a heart of stone, but that wasn't so,
You said I had the blood of kings, but the truth does not flow,
You told me all the tales of times you thought that life would halt,
I told you all the tales of times you lied to me in fault

You said I had the ace of spades, but the joker never arrived,
You said I had the mind of crime, but the truth would never subside
You told me what I wanted; you knew that I would care,
You told me what I wanted; lest faith turns to despair.
