And I would hope to never be here again
'Cause it's you who told me
"Son you were losing integrity"
But more than the fear of losing my own breath Hands to my chest, I couldn't bear to be your disappointment

Carelessness brings consequence
So what if I told you that even I have been here too?
Child be not corruptible, 'cause even we were once the fools

Our travesty is when we can't believe
So what about them? So what about them?
It's an unusual decay between my heart and the brain
So what about them? So what about them?

Maybe it's the world that you're seeking
So why is it a stubborn heart you're teaching?
Careful that you practice what you're preaching
May the world know true love, but not soon enough

Please tear my feet from this place, quickly
I'm scared of these collapsing caves!
(And how do they know, yea, how do they know?)
How did love become this game we always play?
(And what do they know, yea, what do they know?)

And I would hope to never be here again
'Cause it's you who told me
"Son you were losing integrity"
But more than the fear, more than the fear of losing my own breath
I couldn't bare, I couldn't bare this

Our travesty is when we can't believe
So what about them? So what about them?
It's an unusual decay between my heart and the brain
So what about them? So what about them?

Carry on, be strong, we were meant to be great Rapture me, I'm in need, of your servicing

Dishonesty and your nightmare dreams will proceed
If we sit and do nothing

So if I did my best (to save you)
To pull you out of this mess (to save you)
And honestly forgive

I'm so desperate (for life and love)
When did my faith (stop being enough)?
Yet while they bleed corruption,
We are all the consumption
But hope didn't die, it's just scared to reside here alone
Let your brothers and sisters know that a world is alive
Above our skies
Where love is found and no one dies
