She hates what she sees in the mirror,
Thinks she's big but she's really getting thinner,
She don't see, she don't see,
She don't see what's really in the mirror

V1:

Her heart beats louder than my drum tracks,
Her smile always calling me to come back,
She's lovely an I want her to know,
I don't pay no attention to the girls in the videos,
And all that she's been taught is a lie,
Told that her beauty is defined by her dress size,
I despise the world that made her cry,
Made her believe that she could never fly,
I hope, I can, show you the real world,
Don't want a Barbie doll, am looking for a real girl,
A woman, who can hold me close,
Who will listen to my dreams and inspire my hopes,
I chose you, and I want you to see,
Your happiness is all that really matters to me,
So breathe, out, and breathe, in,
Let go of your troubles, let your life begin,

Now take me by the hand cause your beautiful darling,
Its time to leave your past cause the futures starting.
You wanna change but I know you're scared,
But trust me I can take you there.
She hates what she sees in the mirror,
Thinks she's big but she's really getting thinner,
She don't see, she don't see,
She don't see what's really in the mirror

V2:

I love it when a beam of light catches her eyes,
Brightens the path and opens up a world inside,
Now Hollywood can easy make your teeth look white,
Give you them fake veneers but they don't look right!
I'd much prefer the real you, tho you're in denial,
The truth is I'm already in love with your smile,
we all get insecure, now and again,
Even us boys see a world full of muscular men,
Fake pecs, shaved chests and an airbrushed reality,
Sun beds, take your steds, poster boy insanity,
I'm a real man I just wanna have a family,
Wanna feel loved, wanna live my life happily,
Although we're always being told what's attractive,
Don't believe a word baby girl look past it,
You say you're not pretty but that's what they do to you,
You don't have to change a damn thing cause you're beautiful.
