We know and love the things that tend bring us down
Embrace the thoughts that keep us mentally unsound
The road to Hell is paved with good intentions
It's not enough to simply want it all

We follow the easy answers
We follow those who give us pride
We follow the least resistance
We follow those that end our lives

I am the product of my self-induced depression
Enraged and rabid from the sheltered isolation
Alone I dwell in this self constructed prison
It's not my fault that I chose to end it all

Let's see you try to break my soul
I'll watch you die as I become more

We want the world to be forgiving
To feel our pain and forget our faults

Feel the ruined failures
Pull down all of your fears

The road to Hell is paved with good intentions
It's not enough to simply want it all

Let's see you try to break my soul
