I want to understand
How you can lock up all those feelings
If you could understand
My self destructive tendencies

Things aren't always what they seem

It's time we sit and reevaluate
The time we just let go to waste
These years I've wasted
I just want them back because I won't see
What could have been my brightest moments
Will never be
Now hear my cry
Just give me solace

If you could comprehend
What it means to be alone
Then you could understand
Why I'll always be on my own

So close that I can taste it
Yet far away from you
You'll never understand that
I put myself through hell for you

Lights out
This show's about to end now
I feel so god damned run down
Let's watch this city burn down

It's only through the eyes of a believer
That a savior of souls will redeem those
That are the most unworthy

I command your thoughts I command your soul
For this small price you shall live

The hatred runs so deep that
I cannot stand myself
Now you can understand the Misery that I have felt

Fools will judge on what they see but
Things aren't always what they seem
