She doesn't dare to open her eyes
Cause everytime she does a part of her dies
Her eyelids, protecting her from the outside
Locked in her cage with all her rage

And then the tears came
And then the tears came
And then the tears came rolling, rolling down
Yeah, and then the tears came rolling down

She took it too far, she was to brave
You can't take away, what God once gave
Water, nutrition and the comfort of the cage
Red turns to gray, fading away

And then the tears came
And then the tears came
And then the tears came rolling, rolling down
Yeah, and then the tears came rolling down

So we have to keep her in this room
She's a flower
Who is desperately trying to bloom

And then the tears came
And then the tears came
And then the tears came rolling, rolling down
Yeah, and then the tears came rolling down
