I feel nothing for you.
It's all setting in, my patience wearing thin.
I feel nothing for you.
Let's turn the tables around.
You can say what you want to me.
What would the world be like without you?
I have all the leverage I need to remove you.
I think it's time for you to get a grip,
Cause looking back I never had respect.
You cast the first stone,
So I'm throwing mountains back at you.
I thought I left you behind. I was wrong.
You've stained the fabric of my existence.
Letting go was the best move I ever made.
So let me ask you now,
What do you want from me?
What have I ever done to you?
You will not ever change.
You always stay the same.
