I've sang so many paragraphs about the places we should let go and I've written way to many lines about the memories we should hold the feeling runs away like nothing ever happened before and you left me there holding this feeling at the door

It's not easy
It's not easy

So let me breathe
cause you're suffocating me Remembering how things once used to be and all I see is this pain in front of me unshackle these chains that bind me following the feelings that have always taken me home and I'm sorry but the air that I breathe is all my own leaving you in tears was the hardest thing I've done now I've shut the door behind me and you're still not gone

It's not easy
It's not easy

So let me breathe
cause you're suffocating me
Remembering how things once used to be
and all I see is this pain in front of me

Let me breathe just let me breathe
