She lays down in summers bliss forgetting what she's told Man in the wild
you were so young but this cities made you old

It takes so long so long now to get home And now I'm home I wish I never ever been born at all
And in this country they are already dead

I see the mountain
on fire
now go tell some fire for us

There's children in the street watching the concrete turn to gold Man in the wild

Now it takes so long so long to get home and the golden girls they keep calling, oh oh oh oh
now it takes so long
so long to find a home but now I'm home I wish I never ever been born at all

You know the mountain won't go falling if your still willing to climb
But when the mountain goes falling true riches you will find

I see the mountain
on fire
go tell the fire for us
