Fast a sleep in the garden the rain is gone away somewhere in the margin are sheep that's gone astray like the old man of the ocean whose eyes tell where he's been or one who lacks devotion betrays his love again the keep will surely die when he's taken all he can steal

Oh, whipporwhill, are you high upon your hill?
while my feet are on the ground?
Oh, whipporwhill, you make my heart stand still when I hear your evening sound

I know you are much wiser, than my human ears can hear you never had a keeper
'cause you live where no man's near you call from out the timber when the night is dark and still and you make me wonder are we false or are we real?

Oh, whipporwhill, are you high upon your hill?
while my feet are on the ground?

when I hear your evening sound.....
