denise, washes out the color in her hair folds and pats her laundry down with care denise, smokes a cigarette thats meant for two wonders where she put her other shoe where did you run off to?

denise, stops her car and stares off into space happy that she found a parking place denise, tells her boss she'll go and check a price but calls her friends instead to ask advice what did they suggest you do about your lying man whos trying to do the best he can?

oh denise even if you don't come back, im turning up my marshall stack for you denise

its easy to love you even in the dark of night, i touch you and it feels alright
oh denise even if you dont come back,

denise, watches television untill three and when she turns it off she thinks of me its easy to love you
