Red beams pierce through the sky moving us away from what we have already reached
The place we stand is way too far from where we want it to be
What makes things take an unexpected turn?

Man try to think
Why don't you just believe
The good old days
They ain't no more
The war has become visible
It has touched upon the sore spots of you
We will move ahead just like we did
Just like we did before

The good thing is
The good thing is we have our heads screwed on right
We've got some common sense
But anyway we're trying to bring everything back

Things will never be the same
Use the hints that sky gives you
The war has become visible
It has touched upon the sore spots of you
We will move ahead just like we did
Just like we did before

Be honest with yourself
Stop mourning for the past
Pull yourself together
And join us!
