why aren't we living, living together? instead of being so, so far apart? why aren't we living, living together? instead of being so, so far apart?

my life was emptiness, until you came along i neatly followed on.. you took my heart and made me strong and i need all of you to get through the night a chance to see the light i lay my body on the line living, living together... living, living, together... living, living, together... living, living, together...

living, living together instead of being so, so far apart.
