Wash away the anger
Here I stand beneath the warm and soothing rain the droplets falling gently down on the terrain Washing away the sorrow of the stains of time but there's no memory it's only dry inside in the mud it's sinking deeper into a peaceful life and it will flow, like a flood of rain, for another me And it will not let up until the end is here And it will glow through the darkest day in the final hour and it will never rest until the clouds are clear Until I find my peace and disappear my dreams disappear
