(I would lie)
So is this what you call an emergency,
When you're all alone, and there's nowhere to go?
Then I would lie, (I would lie), I would lie
To make sure everything would go how we've planned.
How we've planned,
How we've planned...

Call it what you call love at 3 AM
So there's nothing to worry about.
Looked her in the eye, told her I'd lie
I think I should've stayed home tonight

So feast your eyes on me, and concentrate, you'll see Well, nothing's harder than what it seems Just take the time to realize everything you couldn't be to me

So come on now, call it a night
You'll never know, (you'll never know) what it was like to breathe a lie
I'm going home on my own right
(I'm going home, to where I'd never go)
You'll never know, (you'll never know) what it was like to
breathe a lie
I'm going home on my own right

Ask the skies to their knees and begin to pray
This is so much more than you're aiming for
With the concern of knowing it all, now we fall
Show them love
To be like them, show them love, show them love
Show them love...
To be like them, show them love, show them love

Whoa oh, would you go?
Whoa oh, would you go?
Now I'm letting you know, to keep your feet on the floor
This is worth waiting for,
This is worth waiting for...

So come on now, call it a night

You'll never know, (you'll never know) what it was like to
breathe a lie
I'm going home on my own right
(I'm going home, to where I'd never go)
You'll never know, (you'll never know) what it was like to
breathe a lie
I'm going home on my own right
