Tell me now if you think this could be easy...
'Cause everybody's talkin about the last time we hung out
So tell me, baby, if you start to feel left out

I walked her in through the front door
Everybody's watching us
Acting like there's something to see
It's up to me to do, and for you to try
"I'm really sorry," then we started to leave

I wasn't sure if she was staying the night, though
Who would have known that it would feel so right?
She looked over, "Nice to meet you, tell me what you do"
"I'm really sorry," now we're starting to leave

'Cause everybody's talking about the last time we hung
So tell me, baby, if you start to feel left out
When everyone's around no one's asking for too much
But whenever you're involved, it's never quite enough

Nobody ever wants to feel this way.
Now we have another day
I can't break down, now we have another day
Nobody ever wants to feel this way.
Now we have another day
I can't break down..

('Cause everybody's talking about the last time we hung out)
'Cause everybody's talking about the last time we hung
So tell me, baby, if you start to feel left out
When everyone's around no one's asking for too much
But whenever you're involved, it's never quite enough
