You're yet to find your way back home tonight
Were simply dying down in this place we once called home
Every moment with you is so precious

It seems to me that your chance has fallen
I hope to see your final fate
If we forget who we are Don't look at me when your hearts are broken
It leaves me another day

These last letters of hope
Will bring the thoughts back into my life

With the doors wide open
Revenge has never felt this good
It's killing me to see you live the broken life
Like empty highways in the night

This day will bring us a march we won't forget
This day will bring us the last tomorrow

This day and age will soon be ours in the days to come

You're yet to find your way back home tonight
Were simply dying down in this place we once called
home
Every moment with you is so precious
