"Ten Commandments"

Across the endless sands of time the sins have followed all mankind the people fighting for their rights too much to devour the simple rules for us he wrote he carved them right into a stone all of those days are now gone he lost his power and now the people suffer from those days because they did it all their way and there's no time to save the ten commandments through the hourglass i see the world of hope, the land of the free i guess this is our destiny the genocide

and now those rules belong in history all we have is war and slavery we got no time to save the ten commandments the ten commandments
