Some of us have died, somewhere deep down inside
The weight of the world has crushed our spirits and the hope that remains
Vents out our anguish and avenge on, all that some day could have been
We've crawled up into a ball, been caged for all eternal

But I'd rather live than die
To feel pain to feel love and be inspired
It's the power to dream
The power to dream
The power to dream
It's the power to dream
The power to dream
The power to dream

There was a great deal of strain on my mind
It was all self inflicted and it was pulling me further & pulling me further down
Every breath felt like the next
I was morning every morning
Didn't want to wake up didn't want to see daylight
In a deep dark sea I was drowning

But I'd rather live than die
To feel pain to feel love and be inspired
It's the power to dream

The power to dream
The power to dream
It's the power to dream
The power to dream
The power to dream

It's the power to build, the power feel, the power to heal
& the power to kneel
It's the power to grow, the power to know, the power to hold and to let go
It's the power to dream, the power to dream, the power to dream, the power to dream...

To feel pain to feel love and be inspired

To feel pain to feel love and be inspired
It's the power to dream
The power to dream
The power to dream
It's the power to dream
The power to dream
The power to dream

To feel pain to feel love and be inspired
To feel pain to feel love and be inspired
It's the power to dream
The power to dream
The power to dream
It's the power to dream
The power to dream
The power to dream
