I see it in your eyes
That look of sheer disgust with the world
And I know just what it's like To be lying on a table going nowhere Staring at a wall

And I just want to make things better
What I wouldn't give to see you smile

I put your lips to mine and everything becomes a joke
And all the dead people smile as they watch us getting lost in a moment
I put your lips to mine and everything just seems to disappear
And all the dead people smile as they watch us getting lost in a dream

We meet up in the park just after dark
We laugh about the good times and kiss away the bad You tell me all the things that you were never able To tell the ghostly people haunting you at home

And I just want to make things better
What I wouldn't give to see you smile

I put your lips to mine and everything becomes a joke
And all the dead people smile as they watch us getting
lost in a moment
I put your lips to mine and everything just seems to
disappear
And all the dead people smile as they watch us getting
lost in a dream

We're dead to everyone underneath the stars We're dead to everything we sleep away the hours Underneath the stars.
