Frostbitten fingers were strangling me,
Tearing my life Â–
I was writhing with agony.
No strength to struggle
To get rid of the loneliness
That is lying at the feet
Ov the Castle's mistress

Cold as ice
Dread as death
She belongs to the darkness

When she cries Â–
Hold your breath,
Stay away from her caress!

Transcendental walls
Encircled the black throne
I saw my name
Is carved on old, jagged stones
There was my prison,
There was my home
It was created to escape from the cruel world

Cold as ice
Dread as death
She belongs to the darkness

(She) enchanted me
In my distress,
I have learned all her lessons

So my will transfixes
The ghost of the iced castle.
Awful images are empty fakes
That will slowly lessen

I was here, I was there,
Now I am everywhere!
No more lies, no more hate,
No more doom Â– only fate!
