yeah i'd like to take this time to remind you to look outside
and only take what you need open up my eyes in the morning, now i'm sitting up, grinning with a little yawning, birds chirping outside, butterflies flying by,

i know it's gonna be a bright, nice day, people who live in the city are gettin gritty and not paying attention to their emissions and carbon footprint and global cooking, give it a look not anything til we shook, cut up and then what?
yeah, shut up to end stuff, yeah shunners incent us, yeah, cut up and then what?
yeah we be cut up and then what?

the breeze can't tickle the trees ya see? when a clear cut, fiends and uppercuts the air we breathe,
gonna rock the world like a stampede, sign away our peace just stamp here, the clamps near, endangered list growing, the money stays owing,
the automobile polluting the air thats blowing, we happy not knowing so we're never gonna know, it's only bout being flashy head to toe, and the signs, are heading south, demise in every mouth, we're fine but the kids need help, so ride outside get your soul felt now we know for certain, it's time to put the work in, lets make the world worth it, i wanna wake up
